A LITTLE ABOUT ME!

I became a teacher because as a Syrian American woman who was raised without a voice for herself and never had anyone to look up to while going to school, I want to make a difference in all of my students' lives, make them feel loved and wanted just as much as they deserve no matter what.

I loved many of my teachers and because of them, I am here today, advocating for teachers and Aspiring Educators across Kentucky.

I was the Ethnic Minority Officer for Kentucky Education Association AE and collaborated with my local high school to start Culture Day so that students feel safe to express themselves and their cultures!

Fun Fact

3.9% of the POC teacher community is considered unknown because of my ethnicity as a Middle Eastern woman. I am part of that 3.9%
